Schiefer's 2010 Blaufränkisch Reihburg from the Eisenberg region in South Burgenland confirms its outstanding class once more and also in an altitude of 1,444 meters. Tasted at the ski resort Lech/ Arlberg last December, the wine showed an awesome intense and matured cherry aroma on the spicy and crystalline, slate-driven bouquet that developed into dark fruit aromas that intermingled with tea, meat, blood and iron notes. Vital, concentrated and gripping, this is a powerful and elegant yet not massive heavyweight. Instead, this is very intense, structured and even finessed Blaufränkisch with crystalline acidity and lingering salinity. This is a grandiose mature wine from the Eisenberg, though Uwe never used that appellation, because for many years, he produced an Eisenberg red wine before the DAC rules were set up.
